2. Location

Antofagasta is a coastal city in northern Chile, located between the Pacific Ocean and the vast Atacama Desert. Known as the mining capital of the country, Antofagasta combines dramatic desert landscapes with a long ocean coastline, scenic cliffs, and iconic landmarks such as La Portada. The city offers coastal walks, beaches, and proximity to some of the world's driest desert landscapes, making it an attractive destination for those seeking unique natural scenery, outdoor exploration, and year-round mild weather.

Weather in July

In July, Antofagasta experiences winter conditions typical of the northern Chilean coast, though temperatures remain mild compared to most winter destinations. Average high temperatures are around 18°C (64°F), and average low temperatures are about 12–13°C (54°F). Rainfall is extremely rare, usually around 1 mm for the entire month, and the climate is generally dry with clear skies and cool ocean breezes.

3. Event Venue

The event venue will be located at the Balneario Municipal de Antofagasta, one of the most iconic coastal areas of Antofagasta, Chile. Situated along Avenida República de Croacia, the venue offers direct access to the Pacific Ocean and a wide pedestrian esplanade that will host the main race infrastructure.

All key event facilities—including the transition area, finish line, athlete services, expo area, and spectator zones—will be located within walking distance along the beachfront, creating a compact and spectator-friendly race environment.

4. Transport and Accommodation

Transportation

How to get there from Santiago:

Plane: The fastest way to reach Antofagasta from Santiago is by air. Several airlines operate daily flights from Arturo Merino Benítez International Airport in Santiago to Andrés Sabella Gálvez International Airport in Antofagasta. The flight takes approximately 2 hours, making it the most convenient option for travellers coming from the capital.

Bus: Long-distance buses also connect Santiago and Antofagasta. Several companies operate overnight services with reclining seats and onboard amenities. The journey takes approximately 18–20 hours and offers a lower-emission alternative compared to flying, especially when buses operate at high occupancy.

Sustainable transport: Visitors are encouraged to prioritize collective transportation, such as commercial flights, intercity buses, shared airport transfers, or carpooling, rather than individual vehicles. Using shared transport helps reduce greenhouse gas emissions and environmental impact, contributing to more sustainable travel practices while visiting northern Chile
