Key Course Differentiators

Edmonton

EDMONTON

The 2026 World Triathlon Cup Edmonton returns elite racing to William Hawrelak Park, newly renovated ahead of the 2027 World Triathlon Multisport Championships. This race is the first elite test of the rebuilt course. Edmonton has a long elite history at this tier and above: WTS races in 2018 and 2019, and the 2021 World Triathlon Championship Finals, where Kristian Blummenfelt and Flora Duffy clinched world titles on this same lake. The last two editions (2023-24) stepped down to Americas Triathlon Cup level, so this World Cup marks a return to a stronger international field. Format is standard sprint: 750 m lake swim, 20.4 km bike (3 laps, valley climb each lap), 5 km run (3 laps).

COURSE FEATURES

- 750 m Hawrelak Park lake swim. Sheltered fresh water, single clockwise loop, ~19 °C means it will likely be wetsuit. Pontoon start also rewards more pure swimmer types
- 20.4 km bike — 3 × 6.8 km laps with a repeated climb that average 6.1% over .44 miles. Significant enough that riders will need to commit to the effort to stay with the pack.
- 5 km run. 3 × 1.66 km laps on paved park paths, moderate heat risk (July highs ~23 °C).
- Elite Men 14:00 / Elite Women 16:00, Saturday July 18. Mixed Relay 14:30, Sunday July 19.

Tactical Notes

- Single 750 m clockwise loop on Hawrelak Park's lake. Likely quite sheltered
- First (yellow) buoy passed on the left shoulder at 200 m; all subsequent orange buoys passed on the right shoulder
- Run to T1 is 220 m from the swim exit. Longer transition run than many sprint venues
- Elite Men warm-up 13:00-13:45, Elite Women warm-up 15:00-15:45 on race day

Tactical Implications

- 3 × 6.8 km laps (20.4 km total) with 2 < Category 4 climbs
- One sustained climb/descent per lap out of the parking lot. Average of 6.1% over .46 miles
- Technical double highway exit ramps immediately after crossing the river will demand sharp cornering and smart pack dynamics
- Newly renovated venue ahead of the 2027 World Triathlon Multisport Championships — this is the first elite race on the rebuilt course

LOC-provided shuttles run Wednesday July 15 through Monday July 20 between the airport and the Westin Hotel only.
